About the Statue of Liberty on Ellis Island in New York, USA

The Statue of Liberty is located on Ellis Island within New York Harbor in the United States of America. In 1890 President Benjamin Harrison designated the location as the country's first Federal immigration station. Immigration refers to people who move from another country to a new country to live life as a new citizen or resident. People sometimes move for new opportunities for employment work, family, friends or adventure. From 1892, people from different countries immigrated to the United States of America including England and Europe, such as Ireland and Germany by way of Ellis Island.

The Statue of Liberty is a symbol of freedom and a gift from the country of France. The combined effort of Frederic Aguste Bartholdi and Alexandre Gustav Eiffel resulted in a beautiful light green copper structure. The female sculpture is robed, holds a torch, wears a crown and holds a book of law that has the date of the American Declaration of Independence written on it: July 4, 1776.

Padma Sherni decided one day to be a gardener. She began to plant flowers and vegetables. In the flower garden she had roses, daisies, sunflowers, and marigolds. In the vegetable garden she had peas, cabbage, tomatoes, and pumpkins.

Padma Sherni then went to the wishing well to get more water for her garden.

As she filled her pail of water, she wished for more friends to play with and for her garden to grow. Just then, a fairy stopped by and offered her magic sprinkles. "Don't worry, you will have good company soon!

The magic sprinkles will be for your garden to help the flowers and vegetables grow.

Then you can sell your items in the neighborhood."

The fairy told Padma Sherni that she must share or sell the flowers and vegetables if she used the magic sprinkles but not keep them only for herself. If she shared she would have good luck, otherwise she might have to start all over.

The magic sprinkles worked so well on her flower garden, Padma Sherni started to get excited and brag to some of the children in the neighborhood. The children: Bina, Luke, Jenny, and Surya, were excited too, until Padma Sherni started to decorate her playhouse with her flowers and not share any.

The flowers began to wilt and fall apart and the children started to go away. Padma Sherni realized her mistake and asked the children, if she shared her magic sprinkles, could they help her grow her garden and share more wisely? The children were curious. "Can we each choose a fruit, and grow a garden with you, sharing the magic sprinkles carefully together?" "Yes!" said Padma Sherni. "I would be so thankful for your good company and the help!" she said. Bina wanted to make strawberries, Luke wanted to make raspberries, Jenny wanted to make blackberries, and Surya wanted to make blueberries.

The children worked together very patiently every day and noticed the fruit and vegetable garden flourished and the flowers started to heal and grow again too. Padma Sherni and the children were so happy with their good effort. The fairy was very pleased. She wished the children good luck and good ideas because they would be friends for a long time and were going to make the neighborhood happy with selling their items.

Bina, Luke, Jenny, and Surya helped Padma Sherni collect the fruit and vegetables in baskets and set up a food stand near the play house. They earned enough money from the neighbors to buy vases and began to sell the flowers too.

They also bought some jars and asked their parents to help them make jam and chutney. The children worked patiently together with their parents with a recipe from Bina's mom. The neighbors were delighted that children gifted them jam and chutney. The children were happy to see their garden efforts created a happy friendship making the people around them smile proudly.
